

Dear Colleagues,

My name is Maria Lucila Lusnich. I am doing psychoanalytic training at the Mental Health University Institute of APdeBA (Buenos Aires Psychoanalytic Association) in Argentina. Currently, I'm an IPSO representative of the candidates in my Institute.

I am a self-motivated professional who would like to convey and share my enthusiasm and desire to be elected as Vice President Elect for Latin America. I believe that I have the energy and time to be able to assume this commitment that excites me. Representing the candidates from Latin America generates a deep motivation for me.

I would be a good candidate for this position since I enjoy working as a team, collaborating, and organizing meetings and activities that enrich us while we do the training. I consider that the exchange with colleagues and what I would call: "getting out of the office", showing what we do, nourishes us and makes us grow a lot. It makes us not alone.

I think it could help those who are reading this to show themselves and open up to be listened to, known, and be part of this very interesting project called IPSO. I would like that we put together what IPSO is. Let's define it by DOING, sharing what are our frustrations, satisfactions, and complications, and detecting what we need as candidates.

My proposal is aimed at fostering ties and working as a team with the IPSO ExCom staying connected with OCAL and ABC, that is, to be able to continue what has been achieved. I also support the VCP, a unique opportunity to understand the diverse psychoanalytic cultures outside their regions, establish links with other colleagues, and exchange with them about psychoanalytic training. I will be helping you manage your exchanges.

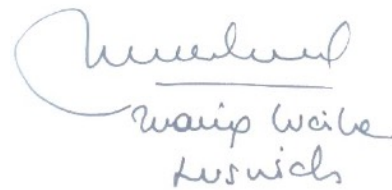

Just as psychoanalysis transmits the idea to us from case to case, the particularity of each subject, I am interested in reproducing that modality of bond with you. Being able to listen your needs or projects you have in mind to help you get going. I am interested in dialogue and I think that face-to-face interactions are really good because we were losing that with pandemic. It would be my pleasure to be able to function as an intermediary for it.

I believe that listening, just as it is the pillar of our work as analysts, should be present in my role as Vice President Elect of Latam and I would be very pleased to contribute to the ExCom and very honored to have your support.

May I have the opportunity to further discuss my qualifications. You can contact me at: lic.lucilalusnich@gmail.com

Thank you.

Kind Regards,
